Suspenseful Drama "36 Hours" Starts Sunday At Grand Vue Drive-In Here

Said to be based on an actual plot perpetrated by the Nazis during World War II, Metro-Goldwyn Mayer's "36 Hours," starring James Garner, Eva Marie Saint and Rod Taylor, is a drama of terrifying suspense.

The thirty-six hours of the title is the time period in which the outcome of the war might have been fatefully changed if an ingenious scheme devised by the Germans to gain vital information about the Normandy invasion had succeeded.

In the crucial hours before the invasion, U. S. intelligence officer Major Pike (Garner) arrives in Lisbon from London fully briefed on the plans for D-Day. Led into a trap, he is captured and put under heavy sedation and then is flown to Bad Aibling, Bavaria in a coffin.

In a remarkable project, the Nazis have given the isolated resort a complete and deceiving transformation. Staged as a U. S. Military Hospital, Allied Occupation Forces, its staff, patients and equipment are identifiably in, including Medical Major Walter Gerber (Taylor) and Anna Hedler (Miss Saint), a young nurse who has shed all her tears as a former concentration camp prisoner.

When Pike regains consciousness, he finds that he is a considerably older looking man, as the result of extraordinary aging experiments performed on him while he was unconscious. He is persuaded to believe that the date is 1950, that for the past six years he has been an amnesia victim and that the Allies have won the war. He is thus induced to talk freely about the invasion and to reveal the plans of what he believes to be a past event. However, one detail of an occurrence which happened to Pike just prior to his leaving London has eluded the wily Nazis and his suspicions are aroused. He forces the nurses to admit that the date is June 2, 1944 and with growing horror realizes what has happened.

To tell more of the plot of "36 Hours" would rob the spectator of the unremitting suspense which helps to make this such a gripping film. Sufficient to say that both Pike and Anna Hedler become victims of a relentless persecution one in which the German medical officer Gerber is faced with the choice of putting humanity before duty to his country. And the tense climax, in which Pike and Anna attempt to escape to the Swiss border pursued by a vicious Gestapo agent, Walter Gerber, is a terrifying experience. Hedler, however, the late and great of the film industry, who has been the center of so much information in the world of cinema, is the most dramatic of all.

"36 Hours" is the last collaboration of William Perleberg and George Seaton, the producer-director team, who have given the screen such effective pictures as "Counterfeit Fratricide" and "The Bridges at Toko-Ri." The picture was photographed in Portugal, with certain exterior scenes shot in California at Yosemite National Park, where the American hospital and compound were constructed. Distinguished music composed and conducted the picture score.

"36 Hours" starts at the Grand Vue Theatre Sunday night.

A cake baked by Miss Baker, in the form of a large picture hat, was cornered with yellow frosting and trimmed with white daisies. This formed the center piece of the table. The dinner consisted of fried chicken and all the other foods that go along with it. The dessert was home-grown strawberries topped with whipped cream and a large serving of the cake. Karen received several nice gifts. Karen was born in the Fritts home 18 years ago. Dr. Landon Combs was the attending physician.

Mr. Andy Hill, a retired machanic, died Monday night at a local hospital after a short illness. Funeral arrangements are incomplete at this writing.

U.S. 119 Rebuilding From Jenkins To Middlesboro Announced by Cooper

US Highway 119 will be rebuilt from Jenkins to Middlesboro as one of the main corridors in the Appalachian regional highway system. The decision to make the road a corridor was made by the Appalachian Regional Commission and was announced from Washington by Senator John Sherman Cooper.

The commission designated 17 miles of the road from Harlan to Middlesboro as a "quick start" project and set aside six million dollars to finance the work and to pay for right-of-way acquisition and engineering for the remainder of the route.

The road had been the subject of considerable controversy during the past few weeks, after it was not included in the original "quick-start" and corridor announcement and there appeared some likelihood it would not be one of the main corridors.

Cooper wrote to ARC head John Sweeney asking reconsideration and Gov. Edward T. Breathitt and Highway Commissioner Henry Ward made special appeals for inclusion of the road.

All said it would be unfair to leave Harlan and Bell counties isolated from the road network.

Members of the Harlan Chamber of Commerce picketed here last week at groundbreaking ceremonies for some new mileage on Kentucky 15 west of Whitesburg. US 119, which crosses Pine Mountain just outside Whitesburg, is the main route south from Letcher County through Kentucky.

Cooper, who sponsored the Appalachian bill and served as its floor manager in the Senate, pointed out again that the road network makes Whitesburg and Letcher County a major crossroad in the Appalachian system. Kentucky 15 (the extension of the Mountain Parkway) US 119 and US 23, all to be rebuilt, meet in Letcher Co.

Whitesburg City Council Opposes Tax Increase

The Whitesburg City Council has gone on record as opposing any increase in city taxes.

The council directed City Attorney Leroy Fields to prepare an ordinance designed to reduce city tax rates in proportion to any increase in property assessments which may result from a recent state court of appeals ruling.

LET'S LOOK IT OVER

By Gov. Edward T. Breathitt

Frankfort—

One of the basic pledges in the platform on which I ran for Governor two years ago was to promote the conservation of Kentucky's natural resources.

The hard looks I have just taken at strip mine operations in both Eastern and Western Kentucky prompt me to broaden that pledge.

I have instigated action to try to relieve the sorry situation in which the owners of surface land in Eastern Kentucky find themselves because of the strip-mine law passed by the 1964 General Assembly.

The Courts have held that the mineral-rights deeds, drawn up 50 or more years ago, give their owners the power to strip the surface of the land to get out the coal beneath, despite the protests of owners of the surface who may be ruined in the process.

In furtherance of my determination to alleviate this situation, it is at all possible, I have asked the Attorney General to intervene in a Knott County court case to test again at length the legality of the long-term deeds.

I have assigned a lawyer from my office to assist in the suit. Outside counsel will be hired if necessary, and we are prepared to go even to the U.S. Supreme Court for a final interpretation.

In the Knott County case, 19 land owners were enjoined from interfering with mining operations which they said caused silt, stone and other debris to wash onto their property.

The landowners asked the court through their attorney to dissolve the restraining order and to declare the land off-limits to the coal operators on the grounds that the old long-term deeds should not apply to strip and auger mining. Strip and auger mining were unknown when most of the deeds were written.

As a result of my tour of the strip and auger mining section of Eastern Kentucky, I have directed the Department of Natural Resources to adopt regulations aimed at solving the problems caused by mining on steep slopes and other practices which result in damage to homes, streams, wildlife and vegetation.

I was pleased to note on my trip to Western Kentucky that in which the owners of surface land in Eastern Kentucky had been done under provisions of the strip-mine law passed by the 1964 General Assembly.

It was apparent, however, that we have not done all we must do, and with that in mind I ordered a new regulation that will require flattening into rolling terrain the hills of earth stripped off to get at the coal. This would eliminate deep pits and valleys that hold acid water.

The inspection trips proved to me that it is vitally important that the State act with responsibility in the whole area of strip and auger mining to protect the rights of the citizens of today as well as those of tomorrow. It is increasingly apparent that further action will be necessary at the 1966 Legislature.

My determination to continue to work for a Federal strip mining law was also strengthened by the inspection trips. Because some states have no laws or lax laws, Kentucky's coal firms, operating under strict laws, are at a competitive disadvantage.

I have asked the Tennessee Valley Authority, as well as private utilities to pay Kentucky producers a higher price for the coal they use, to help bear the cost of reclaiming the land so severely damaged by strip mine operations.

My thanks go out to all who have supported me and continue to support me in these efforts to save our land.

'QUICK-START' ROAD DEDICATED—Pleased with the prospect of new roads for Eastern Kentucky, Governor Edward T. Breathitt, at the controls, shifted the Appalachian program's first project, a five-mile stretch of improved road, into gear near Isom, Letcher County. Assisting him were, left to right, Dr. Alec Spencer, West Liberty, chairman of the Eastern Kentucky Regional Planning Commission; Highway Commissioner Henry Ward; John Whisman (partially hidden), Kentucky's representative on the Appalachian Regional Commission, a Federal-interstate development agency set up by Congress earlier this year; and T. Lawrence Jones, deputy administrator of the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, Washington.

Groundbreaking Ceremonies To Be Held Near Louisa July 23

Federal, state and local officials, wearing bright yellow construction helmets, will push sharp spades into the eastern Kentucky soil near Louisa during groundbreaking ceremonies for the Louisa Bypass at 2:00 p.m., July 23.

Sponsored by the U. S. 23 Association, the ceremony will be held at the north edge of Louisa, near U. S. 23 Herman Wheeler, President of the Association, will be Master of Ceremonies.

The 3.09-mile, $1,881,000 Louisa Bypass, and Madison Street Connector, financed with state bond money and Federal Appalachian funds, is the second Appalachian project which Kentucky has put under construction this month.

On July 6, ground was broken on Kentucky's first Appalachian project that will stretch from Isom towards Whitesburg.

The Louisa Bypass, located in Lawrence County, will begin at the junction of Kentucky 3 and U. S. 23, northwest of Louisa, and extend 2.8 miles to near the Clayton Branch Creek, just south of Louisa. The remaining quarter of a mile includes the Madison Street Connector which will begin at the junction of Clay Avenue and Madison Street in Louisa and extend west to the Louisa Bypass.

Construction of the entire project will include grade, drain and bituminous concrete surfacing.

Development of plans, right-of-way acquisition, relocation of utilities and construction of the Madison Street Connector, which amounts to $657,000, is being financed with 50 per cent bond money and 50 per cent Federal funds.

Construction costs on the Bypass alone, estimated at $1,214,000 will be financed with 70 per cent Federal Appalachian funds and 30 per cent state

The Coal Industry

Kentucky's coal industry is having image trouble these days. Private citizens are banding together to fight strip mining. Overloaded coal trucks are looked upon as villains in a region desperate for better roads. Editorials criticize the industry's seeming lack of interest in the regional source of its wealth. And even the state's newspapers. Some have even gone so far as to suggest that coal is more of a curse than a blessing for the mountaineers of Kentucky.

The coal industry spokesmen are hard put to defend themselves against these charges, because after half a century of mining Eastern Kentucky is worse off than it was before the war. The roads were trampled. No amount of public relief effort can overcome the fact that a county like Perry, fabulously rich in minerals, is still a poverty-stricken area with a crumbling economy.

Why is this? Why don't Perry County's citizens and living standards reflect the tremendous wealth of Perry County's soil? Why is it that a county whose land contains untold billions of dollars worth of minerals must depend on the State for 90 per cent of its educational expenses? Perry County contributes $2,000,000 a year to its $2 billion school system. Why must a county whose land is a treasure trove see its county treasury perpetually threatened with bankruptcy?

The answer is fairly clear. Our wealth has been drained away to Northern cities where the best talents of Perry County's youth live. The billions of dollars of profits from Perry County coal have wound up in New York and Chicago. The only thing Perry County got out of it is a few dollars today, as wages for the industry's workers, a small fraction of the total wealth that once and went like the wind.

The industry has never found the proper channel for the source of its wealth. The goose that laid the golden egg was never fed. The money went through the pockets of a few men in the region but these were empty pockets. It is time to return the wealth of the coal to the people of the region.

the workers a company doctor, build them a little school, perhaps even a small hospital, and to bury them when they died.

But, like all handouts and giveaways, these industry donations did not do the job. The wealth was drained away to other states. None of it went as cash into local government, local schools, local hospitals, local libraries, local roads. Worse, the handouts of an industry that absorbed in maximum profits made it inevitable that the federal government come in with its vast handout program we see around us today.

The coal goes out by the millions of tons, and the welfare checks come in on the return train.

Fantastic profits are exported to absentee business men, while fantastic sums in fuel stamps and makeswork projects are imported through the federal government.

What the industry steals the government returns in smaller measure.

The failure by state and federal governments to control this exploitation—through at least a small severance tax per ton of coal—has caused these same state and federal governments to legislate a welfare intervention to save the mass human misery.

The Appalachian Recovery Bill and the Economic Opportunity Act were enacted in 1964 and 1965 because of the failure of government in 1914 and 1915 to see that the coal-patch industries remained responsible to the people and the land from which they drew their wealth.

The situation continues today. The nation above illustrates it. Remote-controlled corporations sit on Perry County's coal fields while the industry is draining the wealth of the region. The coal industry is a parasite on the life of Eastern Kentucky. Mining companies are the only state industrialists since they are aware of what the public is entitled to know.

The public has come to know that the coal industry is a parasite on the life of Eastern Kentucky. The coal industry is a parasite on the life of Eastern Kentucky. The coal industry is a parasite on the life of Eastern Kentucky.

"Let me tend to the coal business, son, Uncle Sam'll take care of you."

Perhaps even more significant have been the protests of Perry County officials against the state's failure to control overloading of coal trucks. In the past, public officials and the industry have been reluctant to defend the coal industry against such regulation or taxation. But now Perry County officials are protesting. And whether they are protesting because of good politics or because they are concerned about having their roads ruined is not important than the fact that they are protesting.

FREEDOM IS AT STAKE

From the Williamson (W.Va.) Daily News

At a time in our history when so great a concern is being manifested for the rights and freedom of all citizens it is unthinkable that Congress would enact legislation to force a man to join a labor union.

This in effect is what would result if Congress follows President Johnson's urging and repeals Section 14b of the Taft-Hartley Act. Such action would legalize union shop contracts in the 19 States that now forbid them. The move would extend the hand of the Federal government one more length along the way to enforce conformity.

Forcing a person to join a union or any organization in order to get or hold a job is out of step with the American way. It is contrary to everything we hold sacred about a person's freedom of choice. And furthermore the proposal to repeal a section of the Taft-Hartley Act is even more reprehensible when considered that it is nothing more than a payoff of a political debt.

Labor leaders of today need only turn to the advice of the "Grand Old Man" of labor, Samuel Gompers, who in the period when unionism was relatively weak did not demand compulsion as necessary for union security. Instead, he recommended voluntarism as the very cornerstone of labor's structure.

In his last address as president to the American Federation of Labor's convention in 1924 Mr. Gompers said:

"... In 1886 a national labor conference was called. This time it was designated a trade union conference to be composed of representatives of trade unions and to consider trade union problems. The deliberations of that conference resulted in the formation of our present American Federation of Labor with which the old Federation of Trades and Labor Unions was merged. This new Federation recognized only the trade union card as a credential and proposed to deal primarily with economic problems. It was an organization that had no power or authority except of a VOLUNTARY character. It was a VOLUNTARY coming together of unions with common needs and common aims. That feeling of mutuality has been a stronger bond of union than could be welded by an autocratic authority. Guided by voluntary principals our Federation has grown from a weakling into the strongest, best organized labor movement in the world. So long as we have held fast to VOLUNTARY principles and have been actuated and inspired by the spirit of service, we have sustained our forward progress and we have made our labor movement something to be respected and accorded a place in the councils of our Public. Where we have blundered into trying to force a policy or a decision, even though wise and right, we have impeded, if not interrupted, the realization of our aims."

In this same address, Samuel Gompers stated it even more plainly when he said, "... I want to urge devotion to the fundamentals of human liberty, the principles of voluntarism. No lasting gain has ever come from compulsion." Today's union leaders would do well to ponder the wise counsel of a man who served in the forefront of the American labor movement. They would better serve the entire nation if they sought Federal legislation to outlaw such compulsion. The union would have the incentive to conduct their affairs in such a manner that men would want to join.

In the best interest of organized labor, the welfare of our country and the rights and freedom of the individual, Congress must reject a politically motivated move to repeal Section 14b of the Taft-Hartley Act.

The trial of 12 men at Hyden homes of men working at the that began last week for mine.

November 3, 1964, a bomb of 19 sticks of dynamite was found at a bulldozer behind the Blue Diamond Coal Company's store near the office. The fuse had failed.

December 18 at 1:50 p.m. events since most Eastern Kentucky coal mines cancelled their contracts with the United Mine Workers of America.

December 31 power line at Coal operators in Harlan County have been under almost constant harassment by unidentified men who shoot into houses at night, toss dynamite bombs or shoot at workmen from the protection of wooded hills.

Members of Harlan County Coal operators Association served notice on the UMWA May 3, 1964, cancelling their work agreement. It became effective July 13, 60 days after the notice.

Much of the trouble has been centered at three of the larger independent mines in Harlan County—Harlan Fuel Company, Kentucky Jellico Coal Co., and Seneca Coal Co.

Harlan Circuit Judge Edward C. Hill has issued a restraining order limiting pickets to five at each mine, but cars are shot into as men drive the highways to work and effort is made to force cars off the road in the continuing war of intimidation.

There have been seven separate incidents of shooting at in Perry, Letcher and Knott counties since the 12 men were indicted for murder.

But in Harlan County hardly a week passes without some violent incident of intimidation happening.

For instance, the home of B. W. Whitfield Jr., owner of the Kentucky Jellico Coal Co. mine at Brookside, has been shot into once and dynamite bombs thrown into the yard twice since September 11, 1964. The first dynamite bomb went off about 3 a.m. January 18, and June 13 this year was the last at his home.

Here are just a few of the 25 incidents at Brookside or at Kentucky.

From experience, we have learned that the more government is centralized the more easily it is influenced—if not controlled—by leaders of organized pressure groups.

OUR READERS WRITE

V. A. Hospital Enjoys Herald

Dear Editor:

It is a joy to my friends Roscoe Davis and Gurney Norman I always enjoy their articles. Like I tell the folks I work with here at the V.A. Hospital Lexington, Kentucky, the Hazard Herald is our favorite news I pass it on to many ex-Perry Countyans employees here. It is also appreciated by patients of the Eastern Kentucky who read it in our library.

I saw Dr. M. B. Payne in the Louisville V.A. Hospital last week. The condition remains unchanged.

Regards,
Dr. J. M. Ray

Mayor Acts In Our Interest

Dear Sir:

I am writing this letter to inform you that the Mayor of Hazard, the Honorable Willie Dawahare, was in Washington to day looking after the interests of the people of Hazard, Letcher, and Perry Counties.

Although the temperature reached 92 degrees with an almost unbearable humidity, Mayor Dawahare traveled from one bureaucratic government office to another for an entire day.

During the afternoon, I joined the Mayor in his trips across a very crowded District of Columbia. We met in Congressman Carl Perkins' office, and then proceeded to meet government officials in the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, and later encountered a Washington government official in the field of Community Relations.

Earlier in the day, Mayor Dawahare made calls to the Department of Labor, the Department of Commerce, Area Redevelopment Administration, and up again to Capitol Hill.

It should be pointed out that Congressman Perkins and his administrative assistant, Harve Moberly, were very instrumental in setting-up appointments for the Mayor. For without their help, governmental red tape would have proved almost insurmountable.

During all of this time, Mayor Dawahare was trying to promote the "Magie Mountain" project in Hazard, assist boys and girls on summer vacation to find employment, and obtain assistance for sewage facilities in Letcher. That takes in a lot of ground—and so did the Mayor.

The people of Hazard should be thankful to have such a dedicated man as Mayor Dawahare. Additionally, Perry Countyans should give thanks to the many of Mayor Dawahare's projects will add the quality of life as well as those in the city.

THE CROSS WAS HIS OWN

They borrowed a bed to lay his head
When Christ the Lord came down;
They borrowed the ass in the mountain pass
For Him to ride to town;
But the crown that He wore and the Cross that He bore
Were His own—
The Cross was His own

He borrowed the bread when the crowd He fed
On the grassy mountain side,
He borrowed the dish of broken fish
With which He satisfied.
But the crown that He wore and the Cross that He bore
Were His own—
The Cross was His own.

He borrowed the ship in which to sit
To teach the multitude;
He borrowed a nest in which to rest—
He had never a home so rude;
But the crown that He wore and the Cross that He bore
Were His own—
The Cross was His own

He borrowed a room on His way to the tomb
The Passover Lamb to eat;
They borrowed a cave for Him a grave,
They borrowed a winding sheet;
But the crown that He wore and the Cross that He bore
Were His own—
The Cross was His own

Children Hospital Campaign Nears Final Stage

The 1965 Operating Fund Campaign of Kosair Crippled Children Hospital in Louisville is nearly ready to enter its final stages. The Campaign is over halfway toward this year's goal of $225,000, but there is still almost another $100,000, that must be raised if the campaign is to be a success. It is in raising the rest of this money that Kosair Hospital urgently needs the unfailing and generous support of the people of Kentucky.

For thirty-eight years the Hospital has been relentlessly treating the indigent crippled children of Kentucky. Thirty-eight years that have seen over eight thousand crippled children from every county in our state enter the "House of Dreams" asking Kosair to help them to walk and to run.

Only two requirements. First of all, the child must be suffering from some crippling bone or neurological ailment, and secondly, the child's parents must be unable to afford the necessary medical treatment. All patients are selected for admission by a state agency, the Commission for Handicapped Children.

After selection these children are treated free regardless of race or religion. But just because these children are treated free of charge, don't think for one minute that they are charity cases. It is never charity when a good, sound investment has been made today which will pay dividends in the future. The vast majority of patients have left Kosair to become productive members of their respective communities. But without Kosair's help many of these patients would have had to spend their lives as invalids unable to walk or use their hands or legs and in some cases even unable to change positions.

However, the goal that Kosair Hospital has done for these crippled children is no more meaningful than what the people of Kentucky have done for the Hospital itself. Without the generous support of the citizens of our state there would still be over 8,000 crippled children in Kentucky who would have never been able to take that first step toward a normal life. Kosair Hospital can't do the job alone. It needs your help now and will continue to need it as long as crippled children are born in the state of Kentucky. Now is the time to lend your support to the indigent crippled children of our state by making a contribution to the Kosair Crippled Children Hospital 982 Eastern Parkway in Louisville. Do it today!

Be one of the thousands of other Kentuckians who are bending down today so that a crippled child may stand straight tomorrow.

Local Excise Tax Savings Estimated

How much will the recently-enacted excise cuts amount to in Perry County? How much will local residents save, on the average, per year?

Some idea of what the tax cuts and manufacturers will mean, in terms of the individual, is brought out in figures obtained from the Treasury Department and from other sources.

The amount that a person will save is directly related to the amount that he usually spends per year for goods and services. If his outlays are large, his savings will be proportionally large.

Families in Perry County on the basis of what they spent for consumer goods in 1964, shelled out some $1202,000 in Federal excise taxes, it is estimated.

They encountered such taxes every time they made a telephone call or went to the movies or bought electric light bulbs, leather goods, cigarettes, gasoline, refrigerators, beauty products, watches or a host of other items.

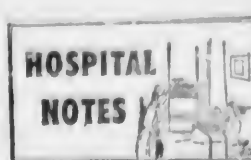

Throughout the State of Kentucky, excise taxes collected by the Government last year came to $1,068,344,000, the Treasury Department reports.

The amount will be reduced considerably from now on. Perry County residents' share of the immediate reductions, which will total $175 billion nationally, will be approximately $150,000.

And, beginning next January, they will share in an additional cut of $17 billion.

Within four years, excise taxes in the United States will be $4.6 billion lower than they are now. At that stage, local residents will be better off, thanks to the cuts, by about $397,000 a year, or $56 per family.

That is the way it figures out on paper. It assumes that mer-

With a flameless electric heat pump in your home, you have your own private "weather machine"—climate control 365 days a year. Not only does it provide a constant year-around indoor temperature, it filters the air you breathe and automatically removes excess moisture during hot, humid months. We call this "comfort conditioning."

You can be sure of the dependable quality of an electric heat pump. And your actual heating and cooling costs can be accurately calculated in advance. Check with us today for all the facts about an electric heat pump that brings "eternal spring" to your home.

MOUNTAIN PARKWAY IS KEY—The Mountain Parkway, shown here by heavy black line, was the key to approval of a route in the Appalachian Highway System which will connect Interstate 64 in Kentucky with Interstate Highway 77 and 81 in Virginia. Highway Commissioner Henry Ward said the fact that the Parkway is completed or under construction from Interstate 64 to Prestonsburg played a deciding role in approval of the entire east-west connection. The Mountain Parkway is complete from Interstate 64 to Salyersville, and the section from Salyersville to Prestonsburg is to open this fall. The Parkway Extension from Prestonsburg to Pikeville was approved as part of the Appalachian System.

Judge Overrules In Knott Court Case Testing Mineral-Right Deeds

Perry Circuit Judge Don A. Ward acting as special judge in a Knott Circuit Court case, overruled an effort by the State of Kentucky to enter the suit testing the application of broad-form, mineral, right deeds.

He ruled that the state could have ordered the state attorney enter a strip-mining case only general's office to intervene in if it involved damage to public such as after touring strip-property such as streams or mine operations in Eastern Kentucky.

The state has sought to reverse the present legal interpretation that the deeds give miners the right to disturb all the land necessary to reach the coal.

This was the first time the state had sought to intervene in such a case. Gov. Edward T. Breathitt said.

Elswick and a sacrifice by Anderson, Indiana for the Babe Ruth Regional tourney.

Turner went all the way for the winners to get the mound victory over Elswick.

The locals won this one on a nifty three hitter by Wayne Patrick.

William Turner, Larry Johnson and Patrick each had two hits to lead the winners at the plate.

Patrick walked two and struck out three in his route going effort while losing hurler Murphy walked 11 and fanned five.

William Turner of the locals was named as the Most Valuable Player for the tourney as he won the opening contest and had five hits in eight times at bat in the meet.

Hazard will now take on the winner of the Louisville District in an 8 p.m. encounter at Elkhorn City on Thursday night with Turner set to do the pitching for Hazard.

The winner of the Elkhorn City tourney will move on to Anderson, Indiana for the Babe Ruth Regional tourney.

Greg Horn will take the mound for the Hazard Little League stars tomorrow afternoon.
